THE THEATERS

Permission has been received from the secretary of war whereby the Vitagraph Company will be enabled to take six important motion pictures destined for the Vitagraph theater, in which the entire department of Texas, under command of General Tasker H. Bliss and Brigadier General Frederick Funston, will be utilized.

A farce comedy by Abraham Schoemer, called "Oh, What a Day!" is to be produced by the Henry B. Harris estate.

For the first time in the history of motion pictures, an earnest effort has been made to depict the ancient Jewish Feast of the Passover on the motion picture screen. Assisted by the Bureau of Education of the Jewish Community, otherwise known as the "Kehillah," Kalem has procured a two-part drama, "A Passover Miracle," based upon this important holiday.

Margery Maude is to appear with Margaret Anglin in the latter's revival of "Lady Windemere's Fan."

To have written more than six hundred produced photoplays is the record held by Lloyd F. Lonergan, production chief at the New Rochelle, N. Y., studio of Thanhouser Mutual Movies. For four years Mr. Lonergan has written all the Thanhouser plays of which there have been three a week. Many of them have been plural reel productions. So Mr. Lonergan has really written more material than appears from the number of the photoplays. He is probably the most productive scenario writer in America.

Comedy will be the order of things at the Robinson Grand Wednesday night, April 1, when May Irwin will appear in her latest success "Widow by Proxy," which ran for over a third of a year at George M. Cohan's theater in New York last season. Miss Irwin is credited with being the most independent star on the American stage, having amassed a large fortune by means of her congenial methods of making America laugh. Her season of late years has been short, an annual engagement being played in New York and a few of the largest cities of the country are covered by a brief tour. Her plays usually are not taken seriously, her striking personality and her very effective, though restrained and refined comedy methods, suffice to make complete and satisfactory an evening's entertainment.

Neil O'Brien and his "Great American Minstrels," under the efficient management of Oscar F. Hodge, with everything brand new this season, from first part to final curtain, will be the attraction at the Robinson Grand Friday, April 4. Mr. O'Brien and his merry minstrel crowd will be a welcome event, welcome because this most recent of minstrel stars established a gilded reputation everywhere last season, and enjoys an enviable record for having presented one of the cleanest, most refined and most thoroughly enjoyable minstrel entertainments this country has witnessed in a generation.

"Stop Thief" is a good title for the Cohan and Harris farce to be seen at the Robinson Grand. It represents the most brazen laugh grabber on the American stage. He steals away your reason and bolts with it without so much as a "By your leave, good sir." He is a sneak thief specializing in giggles, and he forces you to like him whether you will or not. You laugh at the play and laugh at yourself for laughing. There is not a situation in the three acts that you cannot see coming long before it arrives. It is tagged and labeled in advance. Everything that happens is planned and painted in full view of the audience. It is as full of tricks as a conjurer's kit.

The feature offering today at the Bijou theater is "The Chest of Fortune," a two part Kalem war story with reproduction of battle scenes and raids by the noted John Morgan. This feature is a thriller and all photoplay lovers should not fail to see it.

The vaudeville bill for the first half of the week at the Odeon include a fine singing and dancing act by Allen and Arnold, prominent circuit headliners, and an exceedingly clever act by Sigma, the "girl from Normandy." This is a feature day at the Odeon for photoplay offerings and an unusual two reel drama entitled "A Cruel Revenge" and a powerful Biograph drama entitled "Her Father's Silent Partner" are being shown. ## ARBOR DAY

Friday is to Be in the Schools of This State as Set Apart by the Governor.

The governor has set aside Friday, April 3 to be observed as Arbor and Bird Day by all the schools of the state. The vast good that has resulted from the general observance of the spirit of this day can not be estimated in terms of dollars and cents; it can only be reckoned in diminution of floods and droughts and their attendant effects upon agricultural production; in homes and school properties rendered more beautiful and more satisfying; and in lives influenced and molded by the refining and humanizing effects of living in close harmony with the trees, the flowers, and the birds.

It is to be hoped that the time is now near at hand when the useless destruction of trees and wild animal life will everywhere be looked upon as a moral offense, if not, indeed, a statutory offense. This sense of protection can best be developed through the schools and the school children but parents may do much to encourage it. When arbor day comes around this year do not be content with the mere transplanting of a tree or the erection of a bird house—try to transmit to others a measure of that love for Nature and all Nature's creatures which will ultimately result in a more beautiful and more healthy country and urban life.

Scene from "Widow by Proxy," May Irwin's play.
